

Antique Quest

This fast-paced team event creates real excitement between delegates on rival teams as they bid for lots in an auction against each other – and the clock!

The team with the most money at the end of the event wins! Each team will start the event with a float which they can use to buy information about items offered in an auction as well as to ultimately pay for the items they bid for at auction.

The actual value of the auction items (lots) is known only to the auctioneer. Success depends entirely on whether they bid over or under the actual value of the lot. The challenge is for teams to choose auction lots that they feel will achieve greatest profit for the team and buy them for less than their actual value.

Before the auction takes place, teams have the opportunity of visiting the exhibits that they will actually be bidding for. These are located in strategically important “galleries” located throughout Beaulieu. Each gallery has a caretaker, suitably dressed in auction house porter’s attire who will greet each team and encourage interaction.
