

Da Vinci Code at Beaulieu

The Grounds at Beaulieu form the perfect backdrop to this dramatic indoor and/or outdoor team building event.

The Da Vinci Code captures the imagination of guests and immerses them as teams in a thrilling quest to crack the curator's code.

The Da Vinci Code team building event is unique because the historical artefacts that are central to the event's plot are unique. These works of art have been ingeniously designed and created by a team of professional artists and sculptors and each one holds secrets and clues that relate to the mystery facing each team. The murder trail follows a plot similar to Dan Brown's best selling novel (with all references to religion and religious sects removed). It's not necessary to have read the book or seen the film because this event is an experience in itself.

The challenge is all the more absorbing as the entire event is set within the grounds of Beaulieu. The Estate was built around the remains of a Cistercian Abbey, founded at the start of the thirteenth century when King John gave the land to a group of Cistercian monks. Added to this are the games artefacts, clues and genuine works of art, which all add to the heightened sense of reality that teams will experience as they race around Beaulieu.

Working out how the clues fit together requires the input of every member of your team because the clues are hidden in very different ways. Some use word play, others require skilful observation, some require dexterity while others benefit from attention to detail.

The event suits groups of between 8 and 350 people. Everyone mixes and mingles throughout the event as trails cross other teams paths as they compete to be the first to crack the code.

The event lasts between 2 and 6 hours depending on the time available. The number of exhibits each team visits will depend on the total number of participants and the amount of time you have.
